Japanese Taster Sessions in 2012

If you would like to arrange a Japanese Taster Session at your school, please email info.language@jpf.org.uk for more details.

> Harris Academy Falconwood, Kent – Two volunteers came to this school in December to introduce students to Japanese, as part of the school's plan to start up a Japanese enrichment club and for their World Day. After introducing Japan through a quiz, the volunteers taught the students Japanese greetings and the numbers 1-10. Finally, students enjoyed practicing Japanese through a game of bingo and the Japanese directions dance! Miss Buchanan, Coordinator of Humanities & MFL at the school, commented, "All students really enjoyed the Japanese taster - it was fun, interactive and educational. There were a range of activities for students and the taster session really complemented our Year 7 'World Day'."

> Mileham Primary School, Norfolk – One volunteer held a Japanese taster at this school in December. She first taught the pupils Japanese greetings, and then taught them the Japanese numbers 1-10. She then showed the pupils how primary school pupils in Japan live and study. Finally, the students had a go at origami. The school commented, "The children and staff very much enjoyed the sessions. [The volunteer] was well prepared and the sessions were pitched at just the right level for the children. The use of actions to remind the children when counting to 10 in Japanese was of great help. Also the origami was well received, even among some of the boys who may not have been too excited at the idea of paper folding!!"

> Midhurst Rother College, West Sussex – Two volunteers visited this school in December to introduce Japanese language to the students. The school has reported the event in a press release:

"The Japan Foundation visited Midhurst Rother College to give students a taste of Japan. Kayoko Fujii and Kath Lawrence, volunteers for the Foundation, introduced a cross section of Years 7,8, and 9 students to the basics of the Japanese language. They also looked at the comparisons between the Japanese and European lifestyles at home and at school and enjoyed playing Jan Ken Kabuto, the original, Japanese version of paper, stone, scissors. Much to everyone's amusement this game involved each of them making hats using the art of origami and culminated in the winner wearing them all, one on top of another!"

Mrs Hathaway at the school commented that the visit was "Absolutely brilliant. It was thoroughly enjoyed by all involved. We are so glad we took the opportunity that was offered by the Foundation. The students were buzzing with excitement. All were engaged throughout the sessions."

> Fulham Cross Girls' School, London – Three volunteers held language tasters at this school in November as part of the school's Languages Month. The volunteers introduced students to a variety of aspects of Japanese language and culture, including basic information about Japan, the Japanese writing system, self-introductions, and origami. Miss Yammine, the foreign language assistant at the school, commented, "Our students felt very lucky to be given such a great opportunity to learn more about Japan and its culture, and we found the Japanese taster sessions fantastic!"

> Rosendale Primary School, London – Four volunteers visited this school in November to hold Japanese language tasters. After teaching the pupils basic Japanese greetings, the volunteers introduced manga (Japanese comic books) and Japanese cartoon characters. They then introduced the Japanese numbers from 1-10, including their kanji characters. The pupils used their new Japanese number vocabulary to play a game of Bingo in Japanese. Ms Paridjanian, who teaches French at the school, said that the volunteers had "excellent enthusiasm" and "good preparation." She even featured the visit on the school's French blog!

> Hillcrest School, Birmingham – Two volunteers held Japanese language tasters at this school in October, as part of a Languages Day for students of different schools within the Oaks Collegiate Academy. After introducing Japan, the volunteers taught the students about the Japanese writing system via the "Hiragana Rap." They then taught the numbers 1-100 in Japanese and practiced them with a game of bingo. Finally, the students learned how to say "My name is..." and "I like..." in Japanese. Mr Beards, the Collegiate Co-ordinator, commented that the visit had received "Very positive feedback from both students and staff" and that the taster class was "Well thought out and presented."

> Our Lady of the Rosary Catholic Primary School, Kent – Two volunteers visited this school in October to introduce the pupils to Japanese. After a brief presentation about Japan and its culture, the volunteers taught the pupils Japanese greetings accompanied with bowing to the tune of "Frere Jacques," and Japanese numbers. Finally, students had a go at writing in Japanese. Mr Murphy, the Head Teacher, commented, "Both staff and pupils thoroughly enjoyed the taster sessions. Both [volunteers] were superb both in their presentation and delivery of their lesson."

> St. Dominic's High School for Girls, Staffordshire – One volunteer performed Japanese tasters at the school as part of their International Day in September, and also to help the school in realising its plans to begin Japanese classes. The taster began with a Japan Quiz, followed by learning Japanese greetings to the tune of "Row, Row Row your Boat." This also incorporated an introduction to bowing. The students then learned how to say "What is this?" / "It's a..." in Japanese. Finally, the volunteer introduced Japanese kanji characters. Miss Brockless, who will begin teaching Japanese at the school from 2013, said that the volunteer "provided an excellent range of fun and educational activities," and the taster was also featured in the school blog and bulletin. The school is now planning to start a Japanese club in January 2013, then as a carousel subject for Year 7 from September 2013, and finally as an option for Year 8 in 2014.

> Fircroft Primary School, London – Three volunteers came to the school for the European Day of Languages in September and held Japanese tasters for all pupils. They first gave an introductory presentation on Japan, and then taught the Japanese numbers 1-10. The pupils enjoyed practicing the numbers through a game of cards. Finally, all students had a go at folding origami. Mrs Diaz, the languages co-ordinator school, said, "The volunteers were very kind, enthusiastic...and they were very organised, worked as a team and the resources were very good." The school is now considering starting a Japanese club. The taster was also featured in the school's monthly newsletter.

> Castle Manor Academy, Suffolk – One volunteer held Japanese taster sessions to groups of Year 7 students in September as part of the European Day of Languages. After introducing the students to Japan, the volunteer taught basic Japanese greetings, followed by the numbers 1-100. The taster finished with a game of Bingo to help students remember the numbers. Mrs Napolitano, Team leader for MFL at the school, described the taster as "fantastic," and is now considering starting a Japanese club.

> William Brookes School, Shropshire – One volunteer held taster sessions for students from Year 7 to Year 12 in September. She first gave an overview of Japan via a Japan Quiz, and then demonstrated basic Japanese greetings with bowing. She also introduced the Japanese numbers 1-10 and the Japanese writing system. Mrs Crowther, the subject leader for MFL at the school, said that the volunteer was "wonderful and worked extremely hard to promote Japanese and Japanese culture. All of our students responded really well to the taster session they delivered and got a lot out of the day." The school is now investigating starting Japanese classes as an extra-curricular activity.

> Fort Pitt Grammar School, Kent – Two volunteers held a Japanese language taster in July as part of the school's enrichment programme for all years. After introducing Japan through a quiz, the volunteers introduced basic Japanese greetings, followed by how to count from 1-100 in Japanese. The students practiced how to introduce themselves in Japanese with each other, and then learned how to write simple kanji characters. Finally, the students enjoyed seeing how to put on a yukata (a type of casual kimono often worn in summer). Mrs Gordon, a senior languages teacher at Fort Pitt, commented, "It was a very successful session, well planned and delivered and thoroughly enjoyed by staff and students." The school have since received funding through our Japanese Language Local Project Support Programme to continue Japanese as an enrichment course, and are hiring one of the original JTS volunteers who performed the taster to run it!

> Gaynes School Language College, Essex – One volunteer visited this school to hold a Japanese taster in July as part of their “Around the World in a Day” cross-curricular day. The taster began with an introduction to Japan, including the sporting events that Japan will take part in in the London 2012 Olympics. The volunteer then introduced the Japanese writing system hiragana using the “Hiragana Rap.” The students then learned the Japanese kanji characters and pronunciation for the numbers 1-10. Finally, the students learned how to introduce themselves in Japanese. Ms Malakouna, the Assistant Headteacher and Director of Languages, commented, “It was a fantastic experience for the students. Lots of them were very excited and had learnt to count 1-10 in Japanese.”

> Wilson’s School, Surrey – One volunteer visited this school to hold a Japanese taster in July as part of the school’s Activities Week. The volunteer began by teaching the students some basic facts about Japan, and then introduced some basic Japanese greetings and phrases. Finally, the taster session ended with origami, in which students made paper cranes and frogs. Mr Winstone, the Head of Modern Languages, commented, “[The volunteer] proved to be a hit with the boys: he had exactly the right delivery and style for our pupils, who enjoyed the session. The content was very good being not too demanding but sufficiently interesting to engage the boys for an hour and a half.”

> Sale Grammar School, Cheshire – One volunteer held a Japanese taster at this school in July as part of the school’s International Arts Week. After briefly introducing Japan through a short quiz, the volunteer taught the students Japanese greetings using Japan Foundation’s resource, Ready Steady Nihongo. The students practiced the words they had learned through the game “Fruit Basket,” before going to learn about the three Japanese writing systems of hiragana, katakana and kanji. Finally, the students enjoyed making origami rabbits and dogs. Mrs Branch, the Assistant Head Teacher at the school, praised the taster session for its “varied range of activities enjoyed by all who participated.”

> St Mary & St Giles CoE Junior School, Milton Keynes – Three volunteers visited this school in June as part of their International Week. After first introducing Japan through a presentation and short film, the volunteers taught the pupils about the Japanese Star Festival of Tanabata, including the traditional Tanabata Song. They also taught basic Japanese greetings, numbers, self-introductions and the writing system. The Languages Support teacher at the school commented, "It was very suitably pitched for the age of the children and invited a stimulating mix of verbal and non-verbal responses. We all thought a lot of effort and preparation had gone into the workshops. The sessions were a great success."

> Lampton School, London – One volunteer held a Japanese taster at this school in June as part of their "Japanese Day". She first introduced Japanese phonics via a "Hiragana rap," and then taught basic Japanese greetings (with bowing!) via song. She also introduced Japanese numbers, which then enabled students to say their age in Japanese. After a break, the taster progressed with introducing directions in Japanese, origami and the story of the Tanabata Star Festival. Miss Ezekew, an MFL teacher at the school, described the volunteer as "wonderful" and said "The pupils thoroughly enjoyed and gained a lot from the sessions."

> Our Lady Queen of Heaven Roman Catholic School, London – One volunteer held a Japanese taster at this school in June. Tying in with London 2012, she first introduced Japanese sports and Japan's presence at the Olympics. She then taught the pupils basic Japanese greetings, Japanese phonics and self-introductions in Japanese. Finally, the pupils enjoyed making origami cups, cats, boats and bears. The school was "Very satisfied" with the taster, and are now investigating starting a Japanese club using Japan Foundations' Ready Steady Nihongo resource.

> Lydd Primary School, Kent – Two volunteers performed a Japanese language taster at this school in June, as part of the school's initiative to deepen pupils' knowledge of other cultures. After briefly introducing Japan and holding a Japan quiz, the volunteers introduced the three Japanese writing systems (hiragana, katakana and kanji) and taught basic Japanese pronunciation. They then taught basic Japanese greetings, followed by the numbers 1-10 incorporating movements to aid memorisation. Finally, Years 5 and 6 had a go at writing their own names in Japanese, while the younger years enjoyed making origami. The school commented, "The children enjoyed the day and commented about what they had learnt. They particularly enjoyed learning to write their name and learning to count. Many children said they would like to learn more about Japan." Lydd Primary School is now exploring the option of opening a Japanese club.

> Harlington Upper School, Bedfordshire – One volunteer gave an interactive lecture on Japan and the Japanese language to the Sixth Form students for this school in June. After giving an introduction to Japan, the volunteer taught basic Japanese greetings and numbers. She also introduced the three Japanese writing systems and gave the students the opportunity to try writing themselves. Mrs Symonds, the Assistant Headteacher, commented, "[The volunteer] had thoroughly prepared for the session and had produced some excellent resources. She also engaged the students with lots of interactive activities. It was a fantastic presentation."

> Kyson Primary School, Suffolk – One volunteer visited the school in June, as the school is looking to start Japanese classes an extra-curricular activity. The volunteer introduced basic Japanese greetings, daily expressions and self-introductions. She also taught the students the Japanese numbers from one to ten. After introducing Japanese culture through a quiz about Japanese primary schools and a session on origami, the volunteer finally ended the session by singing the Japanese version of "Mary Had A Little Lamb." Miss Ranson, a senior teacher who organised the taster, said that the taster was "...very well run, the right level and enjoyed by all pupils. [The volunteer] was professional, confident and able to support the children well with their learning."

> Falconbrook Primary School, London – Two volunteers visited the school across a two day period in May to hold Japanese taster sessions. After giving an introductory presentation to Japan, the volunteers introduced Japanese language including numbers, greetings and the Japanese version of "Head, Shoulders, Knees and Toes." The volunteers also introduced how to wear a yukata, a traditional Japanese robe. Miss Johnson, the administrator who organised the visit, commented, "The children thoroughly enjoyed all the activities that took place. The volunteers were really confident and did an excellent job."

> Applemore College, Hampshire – One volunteer held a Japanese taster session as part of the schools' Multi-Cultural Festival day in May. After presenting basic information about Japan, the volunteer introduced Japanese self-introduction and numbers. The students then learned how to write the numbers 1-99 in Japanese kanji characters. Finally, the students practiced their new kanji knowledge by completing a fun code-breaking game. Miss Eskriett, Assistant Headteacher at Applemore College, commented, "It was excellent. Our children really enjoyed learning about Japanese culture and some basic language. The teacher was very good."

> The Hazeley Academy, Milton Keynes – One volunteer held a Japanese taster session at this school as part of their Global Citizenship Day for KS3 students in May. The volunteer taught Japanese greetings, self introductions and "I like..." The students then had the opportunity to introduce themselves to their classmates using their newly-acquired Japanese. Miss Cope, Head of Languages at the Hazeley Academy, said that it was "a very successful day. All the students enjoyed their taster of Japanese and [the volunteer] was fantastic with the students."

> Wandsworth Borough Council, London – Two volunteers performed a series of Japanese taster sessions over two days in April as part of Wandsworth Borough Council's "Easter School" initiative for pupils of all schools in the Wandsworth area. The sessions covered basic facts about Japan, basic Japanese greetings and self-introduction, Japanese onomatopoeia, origami, Japanese numbers from 1-100, an introduction to Japanese writing and singing Japanese songs. The council described the volunteers as "excellent" and "a delight to work with."

> The Academy Home Educators, Buckinghamshire – One volunteer performed a Japanese language taster in March for this group of home-educated children in order to support their studies of Japanese culture and martial arts. The volunteer taught basic Japanese greetings and the numbers 1-10 in Japanese. The Group Co-ordinator for the Academy Home Educators described the volunteer as "an extremely talented and enthusiastic teacher, the children loved her lesson and are enthusiastic to learn more." The Academy Home Educators have since requested the volunteer to teach a series of Japanese classes.

> IntoUniversity Brent, London – IntoUniversity is an education charity that runs interactive and aspiration raising education weeks for primary schools. In February, IntoUniversity Brent ran a "Round the World" week for the Year 6 class of one of their partner schools. Four volunteers from our JTS programme held a Japanese language taster session as part of this topic. After introducing general facts about Japan, the volunteers taught Japanese greetings and the numbers 1-10. They then introduced the Japanese writing systems of hiragana, katakana and kanji, which the pupils practiced writing with paint. The pupils then listened to the story of the Tanabata Star Festival using the traditional Japanese story-telling method of kamishibai, and finally had a chance to enjoy making their own origami animals. IntoUniversity Brent's education worker who co-ordinated the visit commented, "The students really loved it, and when I tested them on Friday they remembered how to count up to 10! Most of them put the workshop down as one of their favourite parts of the week on the evaluation forms. On the Wednesday we did an art workshop at the Barbican. They had the chance to paint with water on a special slate and they were all practising writing the calligraphy they had learnt with you guys! The people running the workshop were very impressed with how much the children knew about Japan."

> Sir William Robertson High School, Lincoln – One volunteer visited this school in February as part of their International Day. After introducing the Japanese writing system, the volunteer gave each student a name card with their name written in Japanese, which they used to practice writing their name. The students then learned how to introduce themselves in Japanese, and finally watched a presentation about Japan. The Head of MFL at the school commented that the volunteer had "prepared some lovely resources - the name cards she did for each pupil was really appreciated by them." The Japanese taster was mentioned in the school's newsletter here.
